BARBOURVILLE, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, AUGUST 26, 1904.

First Year. Vol. 1. No. 28.

A RAFT RIDE ON THE CUMBERLAND.

In the year eighteen hundred and seventy-nine I'll say,
We started down the river, a bright November day.
The sun it had just rose, and glowed the western hill,
As we cut ourselves afloat, just below Bay's mill.

The birds were singing merrily, and loud the echo rang,
As we floated down the stream, a jolly, fearless gang.
As we chanced to see a man, who stood upon the shore,
We'd preach him a sermon on "Days of Eternity."

We beheld not the danger that lurked beneath the waves,
Waiting there to enthrall us into a watery grave.
We floated swiftly along on a high-flowing tide,
Until we struck an elm tree, down by the river side,
We fell into a panic, and puzzled in the brain,
We sprang up that elm tree like monkeys in a train.

We stood amid the water, with waves on either hand,
Waiting for a boat to come and take us to the land.
And when we all got landed upon the beach,
We ran about a quarter, our journey for to reach.

As we stood upon the bank, the hind raft of our band
Came swiftly floating by us, and said they could not land.
Two of our own company, with manhood brave and strong,
Stepped on board an old canoe and followed them along.
And with night's sable mantle, there came a chilling breeze,
That roared in the mountains and whistled through the trees.
That drove us to take shelter, and for ails amain;
We found a good lodging place with one—a Murphy friend.

We rested there contented, until the day did dawn,
The world it seemed alighted on a bright summer morn.
Then starting on our journey—our comrades to seek;
We found them in quarters—just above Rollin's creek.
That night we sought a cabin, to wait the dawn of day,
And while we slept and slumbered the tide it passed away.

Next morning bright and early, toward home we turned our plight,
With ups and downs on the road, we reached our home that night.
So ends my first raft riding—its scenes how clearly I see;
I ne'er will forget the time I hugged the old elm tree.

—GEORGE HIGGINS.

A COMMERCIAL CLUB

Should Be Organized Here Without Further Delay.

We have already pointed out in previous articles on the question of a Commercial Club the many reasons why a club should be organized here, and we are glad to note that some of the more wide-awake citizens are taking up the proposition and have begun to discuss it among themselves, and we now have prospects of an early organization of that kind in our town.

Every interest of our city can be better promoted through a Commercial Club than through any other means, and we all know that what we want and need more than anything else is manufacturing establishments to locate here that will furnish labor for the unemployed, and work up the raw material that abounds here instead of having to ship our timber away to have it converted into furniture, implements and machinery, it could and should be worked up at home and let the profits go to our home people. Besides, we have vast stores of undeveloped coal fields that need business men behind them to have them opened and their rich deposits digging out and put upon the market.

Our oil industry is yet in its infancy, and with the proper management, this could be made the greatest oil producing field in the United States, and besides these there are vast stores of other useful and valuable minerals stored away around us here waiting for development. Now, the best way to do this is to start in by organizing a good, active Commercial Club with young, active men to manage it and look after its interests, and we predict that within the next six months everyone will see the fruits of its work. Let's start it at once.

Fraternity Hall.

There is a movement just now taking place by many members of both the Masonic and Odd Fellows societies to erect in our town in the near future, a handsome building containing lodge rooms, reception rooms and parlors, to be the joint property of the two lodges, and to be known as Fraternity Hall.

It is the opinion of those who favor this plan that it will be greatly to the advantage of each order, because by uniting their efforts they can secure a better building, with more conveniences and upon a more extensive plan. The two lodges are amply able to erect and maintain a handsome hall, and if some agreement can be reached between the two lodges, the result will be one of the most splendid buildings in Southeastern Kentucky.

Improvements.

Geo. W. Tye is having a new plank floor put in the driveway of his stable, which is a great improvement to this popular stable.

The First National Bank is putting down a new concrete sidewalk on the west side of the bank, which will be a great improvement when completed.

J. F. Hawn has added a new room to his office, in which he has stored dressed lumber for finishing work.

SUICIDE.

George R. Barton, Of Gray's,
Takes His Own Life.

The little city of Gray was thrown into a state of excitement last Monday afternoon, when it was learned that George R. Barton, one of her citizens, had committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart with a 45-caliber revolver.

Bad health and despondency is supposed to have been the cause of the rash act.

Deceased was about fifty-two years old, and leaves a family.

Oil Notes.

The oil industry in Knox county is still looking very promising, as there hasn't been any activity in the field for some time, it is getting no worse.

The old companies are still drilling new wells, and are getting good results; and the wells where properly handled, hold up at a good average production. It is the opinion of practicable oil men who have recently struck the field, that Knox county will be one of the leading counties in the State in the oil industry in the next few years.

New companies are taking up leases in different sections of the county, with the intention of giving it a thorough test; as it is an evident fact that the field has been merely touched. We hope they will be successful and bring Knox county to the front.

The Great Northern Oil Co. has made arrangements to do considerable work on the Green Epperson farm, The Black drilling Co. is now putting down their No. 7 well on this lease.

The Richland Oil Co. has purchased a new lease, and are now drilling a well on same.

Ira D. Nash, contractor, is now drilling a well for the Standard Development Co. on the Jones-Black farm, which has been an elegant lease for the past two years, and is still producing a nice flow of oil.

comparative merits of the principles they do offer. In his speech of acceptance he analyzed their principles, and he did it with convincing skill. He was measuring the strength of his enemies in the analysis, and he may reasonably claim, therefore, an absence of bias in favor of either.

The campaign has so far seen no completer exposition of Democratic sham than he gave. His words need no comment. Here they are:

“ Our political history has never seen a situation so ludicrous as that which the National Democracy now holds. I can understand how the citizens can work for the Republican ticket and the ticket with enthusiastic zeal but when any human being should, in 1904, vote the National Democratic ticket is something that passes my comprehension. By what right do the Democratic leaders undertake to preach and expound to the American people any economic question? Never in the world could it emphasize itself on any issue as it did on the money question from 1896 to 1904. It seems to me to be the most amazing piece of effrontery for the Democratic people to go before the American people and proclaim that for eight years it has been wrong and the Republicans have been right, and, at the same time, to insist that the crowd which has been wrong shall be put in the places of those who have been right. I believe that, if the gold standard be right, as both of the old parties now say it is, the people will give the credit and the support to the men who were brave enough to pioneer its way, fight its battles and win its triumph. Boiled down to the real essence, sifted to its real meaning, the Democratic campaign of 1904 is a mere unscrupulous hunt for office. Stealing the platform of the Peoples party in 1896, stealing that of the Republicans in 1904—how can the Democracy now pretend to be a party based upon conviction?—Pittsburgh Times.

Because of this condition of affairs before any material good can come to the town or community a force must be instituted by the people of this county and community, this force can be realized through a Commercial Club easier than through any other source.

The man who desires to take a step forward will not hesitate to come forward and make his individual effort to organize and promote the club.

He who cares for his daily bread and slice of pork alone, his cabin filled with children who shall enter an area of the same kind, will hesitate.

The man who has his individual interests at stake will not hesitate, especially the owner of city property or farm lands lying within the county and through which a railroad is liable to pass at some early date.

A Commercial Club in all the larger cities of the country is evidence that necessity demands it, if a larger town or city requires this method of caring for its advancement, the smaller towns should realize the pointed and generally felt want of same. Barbourville is not unlike all other villages in having an older and a younger generation, nor is it peculiar that the older generation feels, thinks and acts as it did in its youth.

These ideas of making a city or country prosperous are achieved not through methods other than modern.

We have every facility that Nature can allow within our commercial borders to cause Barbourville to be the foremost city in the mountains, yet we have accomplished nothing; to find a reason for this state of affairs we would necessarily have to ask the first business man we meet, he would tell us the citizens were not anxious to make the community of interest to any one save themselves.

Because of this condition of affairs before any material good can come to the town or community a force must be instituted by the people of this county and community, this force can be realized through a Commercial Club easier than through any other source.

The man who desires to take a step forward will not hesitate to come forward and make his individual effort to organize and promote the club.

A Little Trick by Hurd.

(Columbus, Ga., Enquirer.) Quite an amusing little incident occurred at the market yesterday, the participants being Prof. Hurd, the magician, and a peddler of chickens, who hails from the country.

Prof. Hurd walked up to the peddler, who was at the time holding a rooster in the hand trying to sell it, and Prof. Hurd remarked that it was a fine hen. The peddler replied, "you city folks don't know the difference between a rooster and a hen. That's a rooster."

"No, it's a hen," replied the magician, and to prove his assertion, he placed the fowl in a basket which was lying near by, and after a minute or two, he then removed the fowl from the basket and there before the peddler's eyes, were seven eggs.

The magician then walked calmly away, the peddler staring in blank amazement. Hurd is to appear at College Chapel Monday night, Aug. 29.

Wayland.

Robert Tugge, of this city, while in Jellico last Saturday night, was held up by two highwaymen and robbed of his purse, containing several dollars. He was first struck on the head with some instrument and knocked down, after which they proceeded to go through him. When he realized what had happened he found himself looking into the muzzle of two large pistols. He feels that he was very fortunate to make his escape with his life.

Don't forget that I will sell six spoons O. N. T. thread for 25 cents a le. H. L. Jarvis.

THE WIFE.

All day, like some sweet bird, content to sing In its small cage, she moves to and fro— And even and anon will upward spring To her sweet lips, fresh from the fountain below.

The summer's melody of pleasant thought, Uncosmopolitan's utter'd gentle-toned and low— With placid fancies of one trusting heart.

That lives out in her smile, and turns From life's cold seeming at the busy mart,

With tenderness, that heavenward ever years

To be refresh'd where one pure altar burns.

Shut out from hence the mockery of life,

Thus liveth she content, the mock, fond, trusting wife.

If ever household affections and loves are gracious things, they are graceful in the poor. The ties that bind the wealthy and the proud to home, may be forged on earth, but those which link the poor man to his humble hearth, are of the true metal, and bear the stamp of heaven. The man of high descent may love the halls and lands of his inheritance as a part of himself, as trophies of his birth and power; the poor man's attachment to the temple he holds, which strangers have held before, and may to-morrow occupy again, has a worthier root, stuck deep into a purer soil. His household gods of flesh and blood, with no alloy of silver, gold or precious stones; he has no property but in the affections of his own heart; and when they endear bare floors and walls, despite of ton and scanty meals, that man has his love of home from God, and his rite but becomes a solem place.

THE most trifling actions that effect a man's credit are to be regarded. The sound of your hammer at five in the morning or nine at night, heard by a creditor, makes him easy six months longer; but if he sees you at a billiard table or hears your voice at a saloon when you should be at work, he sends for his money the next day.

BEAUTIFUL lives have blossomed in the darkest places, as pure white lilies full of fragrance on the silvery, stagnant waters. No possession is so productive of real influence as a cultivated intellect. Wealth, birth and official station may and do secure to their possessors an external, superficial courtesy; but they never did command the reverence of the heart. It is only to the man of large and noble soul, to him who blends a cultivated with an upright heart, that men yield tribute of deep and genuine respect.

PARENTS do wrong in keeping their children around home in idleness and sheltered and enervated by parental indulgence. The eagle does better. It stirs up its nest when the young eagles are able to fly. They are compelled to forth for themselves for the old eagle literally turns them out and at the same time tears all the down and feathers from the nest. 'Tis this rude and rough experience that makes the king of birds, so fearless in his flight and as expert in his pursuit of prey. It is a misfortune to be born with a small heart, yet man may be born with a very spoon in your mouth. Riches often hang like a millstone about the necks of ambitious young people.

BAD Company is like a nail driven into a post; which after the first or second blow can be drawn out with little difficulty; but being once driven in up to the head, the pinchers cannot take hold to draw it out, which can only be done by the destruction of the wood. You may be ever so pure, you cannot associate with bad companions without falling into bad odor. From impure air we take diseases, from bad company vice and imperfection.

With many of us our parents have lived their allotted time of three score years and ten, but if we still

A Newspaper Opinion that Can be Truly Said of John Robinson's Shows.

There was a great deal of the exhibit, and everything shown was of the highest degree of excellence and up to an exacting standard. The Circus more than made good all that it promised. All was fine, from the Choral Dance of the Half Hundred graceful and beautiful girls, down to the individual acts in the three rings. The Menagerie is a show in itself. Robinson's Circus is an Aromatic Triumph.

Don't Forget the Day and Date, Barbourville, Saturday, August 27.
